

SUBSTANTIAL GAINS MADE BY ALLIES

GENERAL PETAIN'S MEN HAVE TAKEN THEM BACK ON WESTERN SIDE OF MARNE SALIENT.

VILLAGE IS CAPTURED

Village of Longpont, Most Important Point, Taken by French After Hot Skirmish—Await German Drive.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] General Petain is giving the Germans on the western side of the Marne salient little rest in their position east of the forest of Cers Cotelets.

Last night his troops again drove in on this front and made substantial progress.

Longpont Taken.

The most tangible result reported from this latest fighting is the capture of the village of Longpont, to the outskirts of which the French have pushed in their advance on Wednesday night. A farm in the neighborhood also was taken. The French line was likewise driven ahead in the Chavigny farm district north of Longpont. A forward push was also given the line in the area south of Longpont, east of Faveross. The extension of the front under attack to the east of Faveross is noteworthy as showing the process of straightening out the line between the Aisne and Marne is being carried still further south and is threatening the local salient held by the Germans between the Longpont district.

On the American sector northwest of Chateau Thierry, the series of operations carried out by General Petain on this front during the present week have been generally regarded as merely local importance designed to straighten the line and fortify it against the German renewals.

The Big Hun Blow Expected.

The possibility is not overlooked, however, that it may be a prelude to a more important attack. The time has not been considered opportune to General Poch to abandon his defensive role and turn to the offensive on a large scale, but it is not impossible that the "feeling out" operations which are in progress on both the French and British fronts, have other than a purely defensive purpose.

Minor Operations.

Last night's action on the British front were all in the nature of scouting operations. The majority of them were on the Flanders front, where during the day yesterday Field Marshal Haig's men have conducted a raid in force in the vicinity of Herpel, northwest of Nieppe woods, on the road to the railroad junction of Hazebrouk, bringing in more than 120 prisoners.

More Hun Prisoners.

Additional raids last night in the Meuse and Kemmel sections on this front resulted in the taking of more prisoners. On the assumption that the Germans, if they decide to open up their attack on a new front, will strike somewhere between Thionville and Lorraine, some interest may be attached to the report in the French official statement today that the enemy artillery is displaying rather marked activity on the front northwest of Verdun within this area.

FIVE U. S. AIRPLANES CAPTURED BY HUNS?

Washington, July 12.—Five American airplanes which went on a bombing expedition failed to return, Gen. Pershing reported today.

Berlin reported five American airplanes in German hands yesterday.

Paris.—The village of Longpont on the Suveres river east of Viller Cotterets, has been captured by the French army the official statement from the war office today. The French also continued their progress north of Chavigny farm. Javage farm north east of Faveross, also was occupied.

In the raid north of Montdidier and in the Champaillon sector the French captured 15 prisoners.

Serious Mutiny.

Courts.—A serious mutiny among the Austrian troops in one of the occupied districts of Serbia is announced by the Serbian press bureau here. The garrison at Kragujevac, the former Serbian arsenal, broke into rebellion because of bad food, the statement declared, and many of the officers were killed.

The mutiny was suppressed after a veritable battle in which machine guns and artillery were freely used.

HUNS HESITATE.—Germany continues to hesitate to change the allies to heavy fighting by resumption of an offensive movement. The initiative in local engagements and raiding operations is being taken by the French troops, and they continue to harass the enemy at many points between Ypres and Rheims.

CARRY OUT RAIDS.—British troops on several sectors have raised the German line on the Flanders and Picardy battlefields. The Australians in one place brought back seventy prisoners. Between the Aisne and Marne, French patrols have penetrated the enemy position south of Corey, the scene of the latest French gains, which the Germans have made no attempt to dispute. On the Marne front American troops have routed a German patrol which attempted a raid on this front as well as on most of the British front.

From Ypres to Somme the weather has been rainy.

AVIATORS INACTIVE.—Airplanes have suffered from the unfavorable atmospheric conditions and artillery action has decreased.

CLAIM FAILURE.—Berlin claims that five airplanes out of an American squadron of six, which attacked the German line, fell into German hands, the crews being made prisoners. There is no confirmation of this report from any other sources. British aircraft have dropped bombs on Offenbergh, a manufacturing town southwest of Karlsruhe. American aviators on the Toul sector have accounted for two enemy machines.

AUSTRIANS RETIRE.—Austrian forces in eastern Albania continue to retire before the pressure of the advancing Franco-Italian detachment. In the Tomorica valley the enemy is feeling northward before the French, who have reached the valley from the east and occupied several villages. Italian troops on the west have captured the command peak of Gromana, capturing 250 prisoners. This height commands the district between Bura and the Tomorica.

RUSSIAN SUCCESS.—Bolshevik troops report having gained successes over the Czech-Slovak troops in eastern Russia and Siberia. It is claimed the Czechs have been driven from the towns on the Volga, both northeast and southeast of Moscow. General Muraviev, in command of Bolshevik forces operating against the Czechs, has committed suicide, according to an official Russian wireless dispatch, after futile attempts to start counter-movements against the Bolsheviks.

FINANCIAL CONTROL.—Czechs in Western Siberia are virtually all in firm control of the Czech forces, who hold 1,300 miles of trans-Siberian railway and important cities along its route. It is not improbable the Czechs are moving into Siberia from Russia, which would account for the reported Bolshevik success against them.

ANOTHER CAMPAIGN STARTED BY BOCHES ALONG RHINE TO PREVENT ALLIES SHELLING RHINE TOWNS

ARE CRYING 'KAMARAD'

Newspapers Claim That Allies Have Stood Bombing for Three Years And That Germans Are Whining Already.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Geneva, July 12.—Another campaign has been undertaken along the Rhine to prevent allies bombarding Rhine towns. The Landtag of Baden has been asked to pass a resolution rising in the government of the Grand Duchy to exercise his influence with imperial authorities to come to arrangements with the belligerents to abandon on both sides the aerial bombardment of towns outside the zone of military operation.

Papers Comment.

In commenting on this new campaign, the Lausanne Gazette declared the Germans since the beginning of the war have bombarded London and did not whine. Now the Germans times with zeppelins and airplanes, while the allies during three years for various reasons were unable to reply but did not whine. Now the Germans it adds, after only a few months of bombardment of their open towns are crying "Kamarad."

Authorities Arrested.

Paris.—A Geneva dispatch reports the arrest by the Swiss authorities, of M. Goutheux, director of the Revue Domain, charged with being implicated in cases, where persons in France are accused of corresponding with the enemy. It is alleged Goutheux here was agent in Switzerland, of the Bolshevik government of Russia.

Constantinople Shelled.

London.—Air forces contingents, acting with the British navy dropped a half ton of shells on the city of Constantinople, on July 7, it was announced by the admiralty today.

Boches Are Anxious to Receive Peace Offers From Allies

London, July 12.—There is the closest unity between the political leaders of Germany and German army headquarters regarding their readiness to receive peace proposals from the allies if they are offered in a spirit of sincerity. This statement was made in the Reichstag by imperial chancellor Von Hertling by imperial change Telegraph dispatch from Cologne. The program of German foreign policy the chancellor added was laid down in Germany's reply to the papal note and it would be adhered to. That would be peace and Germany has not and will not change her policy however strong the idea of destruction was expressed in speeches in allied countries. The recent proposal of President Wilson and foreign secretary Balfour forced Germany to continue the struggle.

CZECH SLOVAK FORCES OCCUPIED FAMOUS CITY

Washington, D. C., July 11.—The National Geographic Society issues the following war geography bulletin on Irkutsk, which is reported to have been occupied by the Czech-Slovak forces operating in Siberia:

"With a population of 130,000, Irkutsk is the most important inland city of Siberia. It is the capital of the government or province of the same name and is situated on the right bank of the Angara, a broad, swift-flowing river which is one of the principal outlets of the great Siberian lake, whose southwestern shores are only 44 miles east of the city. It is the deepest lake in the world, 6,500 feet in some places, with the exception of our own Great Lakes and Victoria Nyanza and Tanganyika in Africa, is the largest body of fresh water on the globe.

PUBLISHER WILL HELP INQUIRY

DOCTOR EDWARD RUMLEY FORMER PUBLISHER OF NEW YORK EVENING MAIL WILL PLACE ALL FACTS BEFORE GOVERNMENT

BOND OWNERS LISTED

A Complete List of Americans Who Have Purchased German Government Bonds Are in Hands of Secret Service

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, July 12.—Doctor Edward A. Rumley, former publisher of the Evening Mail arrested on charges of perjury in connection with the question of ownership of the newspaper which the government alleges was bought in the interest of the Germans, announced today that if the senate should make investigations into affairs of the newspaper he would waive immunity and place all facts in possession of the government.

Proposed Inquiry.

To Senator King of Utah, who proposed a senatorial inquiry into the Evening Mail, Dr. Rumley sent the following telegram today:

"I have immunity and will willingly place at your disposal all facts in my possession."

List of Bond Owners.

A fairly complete list of the holders of German government bonds in the United States is being compiled by the secret service men fighting German troops, it was said today by officials discussing the disclosure of the large holdings of the Bush Atlantic City made yesterday by Alfred L. Becker, New York assistant attorney general.

Have 20,000 Names.

Names of nearly 20,000 individuals are on the list, which has been built up during the course of a secret investigation made during the last two years. A wide distribution was given the securities and they were placed in denominations as small as $50. Approximately six different issues of the bonds were made in the United States. In order to evade the English blockade and the French blockade, the bonds were issued in various currencies, but all were made in Germany. A provision was incorporated on the face of most of them that they should be considered invalid unless countersigned by the German government. They were underwritten in good sized blocks by various banking houses in New York City. The Bush Atlantic City company officers, two of whom were arrested yesterday for internment were active agents.

Advocate of Prohibition.

Advocate of prohibition in the senate of the proposed for national war time prohibition negotiated today for agreement to vote on the "bone dry" rider to the $100 million emergency agricultural appropriation bill. The prohibition leader suggested a formal agreement to vote Aug. 20 on conditions that they allow the bill to go over until after a summer vacation adjournment of congress. A counter proposal was the bill go over and be given, provided status for a constitutional reconsideration after the vacation adjournment is reached. Congressional leaders plan to consult with President Wilson on the prohibition question regarding consideration of revenue loss to the government and the new revenue bill.

How the Austria-Hungarian government got control of the savings of its emigrants to this country through the trans-Atlantic trust company, seized by Francis T. Garvin, investigator for the alien property custodian. Austro-Hungarian emigrants upon their arrival in New York City, had their money, were met at the pier by a magnate of the bank who directed them to boarding houses, the keepers of which, were representatives of the trans-Atlantic institution. Even the bank of clergymen were utilized by the bank officials to impress Austro-Hungarians with the importance of placing all their funds and savings in the trans-Atlantic trust company. Millions of dollars worth of Austro-Hungarian and German war bonds advertised by the bank in George Sylvester Viereck's weekly paper called "The Fatherland" among other publications were sold to these immigrants and even to others who had become American citizens. On the day the bank was seized by the government the bank had 14,000 depositors and 60,000 customers and $7,000,000 in deposits.

The message concludes by asserting the United States will participate whole heartedly in the celebration of July 14, Bastille Day.

Roumanian Peasants Are Suffering From Lack of Clothing

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Paris, July 12.—Roumanian peasant population is in a most precarious condition from lack of food and clothing but at any time the Roumanian entered the war. Reports reaching the Associated Press from authoritative sources indicate all crops this year a failure.

The crop of corn, which in normal times is the great national staple probably will yield less than one-twentieth of the usual annual yield. Wheat and other cereals there is only sufficient to feed one-tenth of the population. What little food there was has been requisitioned by the Germans. The bread ration has been reduced further and amounts to less than one-half pound daily.

PAPER SHORTAGE IS CAUSE FOR ORDERS AS TO FREE PAPERS

These copies are to be discontinued, thus conservation of paper will occur. War order follows, and is effective at once. All free copies of the Gazette are discontinued.

JANESVILLE MAY HAVE A GASOLINE SERVICE STATION

Standard Oil Company Contemplating Erection of Filling Station Here.

Erection of a modern gasoline filling station in Janesville is being contemplated by the Standard Oil company, and efforts to secure a desirable location are now being made. The company has been secured on three or four sites in the city, but complete plans as to the nature of the undertaking cannot be divulged until a deal for a location has been closed. Among the sites being considered is the property across the street south from the public library at the corner of Madison and Lawrence avenues. The gasoline service station which is contemplated to erect here will be of the same type as those in other cities, as at Rockford and Chicago. The beauty and exquisite design of these structures add much to the attractiveness of its surroundings. Every convenience is afforded by these stations to autos in refueling from the tanks. A direct leading from the street to the filling stations situated under an overhead canopy with artistic lighting arrangements.

Whether a service station will be erected in this city or not will not be known for at least ten days, when it is expected the property site will have been settled upon.

James Hampton Pleads Guilty to the Charge of Drunkenness and is Given Twenty-five Dollars and Costs.

James Hampton was arraigned before Judge Maxwell this morning on the charge of being drunk and after his plea of guilty he was given a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs. Martha Reynolds, who was arraigned in court last Saturday morning and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge of drunkenness suddenly changed her mind after thinking the matter over and entered a plea of guilty. She was very indignant when Judge Maxwell read the charge of drunkenness to her, but after reposing in the county jail for a short time she became more calm. On her plea of guilty she was given a fine of three dollars and costs.

The Southern Cotton Oil Trading Co. were awarded a judgement of $22.87 and costs against Paul Gerhart in the municipal court yesterday afternoon.

BELOIT BOY DIES OF BULLET WOUNDS

Beloit, July 12.—Sergeant Arnold J. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. August Peterson, 1025 Eighth street, died June 13 as the result of an accidental gun shot wound, according to a cable telegram received by his parents this afternoon.

Sergeant Peterson was a member of Company L of the 12th Infantry, enlisted three days before the Beloit border service two years ago and was with his company when the 32nd Division took over a sector on German soil near the Swiss border. Several times he had made an enviable record as a soldier. He is the first Beloit boy to lose his life overseas and the first to die on German territory. No details of the fatal accident are known.

GOVERNMENT BUSY WITH BOOTLEGGERS

William Jeffris, alias James Murray, who was brought to Janesville by an officer of the department of justice for safe keeping last week and claimed Sharon as his home, was arraigned before Court Commissioner French at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. He was charged with five hundred dollars bail to the federal grand jury, on the charge of giving liquor to soldiers from Camp Grant, and stated that he did not sell any soldiers liquor. While at the local jail here he told several different stories.

United States District Attorney Wolfe declares the surroundings at Camp Grant, Camp Robinson (Sparta) and Camp Douglas are being closely watched. Persons are bidding for a stay in the house of correction by allowing themselves to be drunk to men in uniform. Judge Sanborn is sending the offenders to Milwaukee for ten months. "Criminal intent is not essential in these cases," said the judge. "In January, 1918, the public was prohibited from selling, giving, procuring or furnishing liquors for these boys. One June 27, the regulations were extended by providing that no one should be allowed to serve them, even when they are guests in private homes. The rules apply to officers and men. There are many bootleggers who have to do with the law. The trouble is caused by people who claim they do not know the law."

MANAGEMENT HOSTS TO THE EMPLOYEES

Golden Eagle Clerks Enjoy a Delightful Supper and Moonlight Ride on the River.

Last evening the young lady employees of the Golden Eagle, the men and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Levy, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Ford, and Mrs. J. G. Bridges, enjoyed a regular old-fashioned supper and picnic up the river.

The doors of the store were closed at 5:30 and all made for the docks. At 6:30 the party arrived at the Harry George cottage where long tables of "eats" awaited them.

After the tables were cleared, numerous games were played, and were won by the Misses Hill, Helder, Pratt, Reardon, Spohn, Carlson, Pomeroy, Levy, Mulligan, Brown and Murphy, and by the gentlemen, George, Baker, Brown and Kuster.

In the tug-of-war the young ladies won from the men and treated all to a dozen packages of gum, then a game of cards was played. The evening was enjoyed, fox trots, two-steps, quadrilles and reels. All proved popular.

After a lovely moonlight ride up the river the party embarked for home.

NEW COMPANY NAMES PERMANENT OFFICERS

JANESVILLE MACHINE COMPANY
COMPLETES REORGANIZATION—ALL STOCK PAID IN.

SURVEY IS COMPLETE

Engineers Finish Field Survey of General Motors Corporation in Spring Brook.

Reorganization of the Janesville Machine Company was completed this week with the election of permanent officers and board of directors. All stock in the new $2,250,000 corporation has been paid up and no stock is being offered for sale.

The company is incorporated under the laws of Wisconsin as "Janesville Machine Company," making a slight change in name from the former, "The Janesville Machine Company," by dropping the definite article. The controlling interest in the stock of this new corporation is held by the General Motors Corporation, which had practically full sway in the selection of the permanent officers of the new corporation.

Permanent officers of the new corporation are: J. A. Craig, president; H. L. Barton, vice-president; T. S. Merrill, secretary-treasurer; Mr. Merrill and Mr. Barton are from Detroit, Mich.

The equipment of the Janesville Machine Company is being improved to make for increased production of the plant. A massive concrete retaining wall is being constructed at the river from Court street to Center street to provide firmer foundation for the warehouses of the company near the river. A new machine for the 350 horse power will soon be installed in the boiler room to increase the boiler capacity of the plant. A second storage tank for crude oil is now being installed underground on Center street. The tanks have a capacity of 5,000 gallons each and weigh 9,000 pounds. Owing to the present scarcity of oil and the difficulty of securing it, the company has been found necessary to take this step to insure a reserve supply of the crude oil.

The survey of the 125 acres of property of the General Motors Corporation in Spring Brook has been completed and the engineers are now at work compiling the data on the survey. The field work for the survey took ten days' work, and two weeks more will be needed to compile the large amount of data and complete a diagram of the property. When this has been completed, actual work on construction of buildings for their new tractor plant will be started by the corporation.

MARQUEE DAMAGED BY WOOLEN MILLS TRUCK

The marquee in front of the Kemerer garage was badly damaged yesterday afternoon, when the huge truck owned by the Rock River Woolen Mills backed into it, while the driver was attempting to turn around. The glass plates along the outer edge were smashed, and parts of the iron framework were broken.

Howard, who was in the third grade of rural school, was evidently "absorbing" this morning, the student literature also, as one evening he said to his brother: "Roy, do you remember where it is in 'Evangeline' that Brutus kills Caesar?"

Asks For Service
La Crosse.—Howard K. Onks, of this city, member of the original Carroll college football team, which made an enviable reputation a few years ago, does not wish to hide behind a skirt. He wrote the local exemption board today that circumstances had now changed which made him no longer the sole support of a widowed mother, and asked that he be advanced to class one.

The Safest Plan

From a business standpoint there is no one who understands your wishes and plans better than your banker and your lawyer.

If you employ your lawyer to draw up your will and appoint us as your executor or administrator, you will have your affairs in the hands of men who best understand your wishes.

When the time comes to settle your estate, we will retain your lawyer if you desire and together we will see to it that your plans are carried out.

This arrangement will give you heirs the very best results. And the cost is no more than it would be if you appointed some personal friend who has neither the experience nor the machinery to do your work thoroughly.

The Little Mother of Shock 3

ZOE BECKLEY

LOVE AND HELL.

The man in cot 27 puzzled Sally, despite her lack of time to indulge in mysteries. But one couldn't help being puzzled at 27. His blondness in the first place, made him different from the rest. His face, a perfect oval, his hands, which showed shapely, thin and well kept once the grime and blood was scrubbed from them. A man of birth and breeding obviously, and of wealth for his few possessions were of quality and costliness. He had a small, close-clipped fair mustache, a lean jaw and he was wearing a ring on the fourth finger of his left hand. What was he doing here among these private soldiers?

As Sally moved about under her and as the doctor, No. 27, followed her incessantly with his eyes. Never bright they were and very blue. There is something so disquieting in a persistent stare that one has to be more or less conscious of it. Sally regarded it even through a constant round of applying compresses, taking temperatures, fletching water, and doting medicines.

Sally tried to disregard it, but with only half success. No. 27 had three serious wounds and required utmost care. But when Sally came to tend him he would always say, "Dear, beautiful girl, what are you doing to this?" "Gaston do this. It is no work for you."

"Nonsense," Sally would answer briskly, applying the dressings with left hands to his shattered side. "Suppose all my children were here, how would I ever get them well?"

"Is it so important to get well?" "You know it is."

"You see there is work to do."

"Work to do? Well, I am tired of work—just work. His eyes did not leave her face. Tell me, dear lady, with the love in your face, are you only for this work's sake? Ah, you win. Forgive me, I did not mean to be cruel, I who suffer. Not here, not in this hospital, but in the world, I laid his hand upon his breast.

"Come," he honest. "You are not seeking work, but to forget pain—and find love!"

"Hush—please!" whispered Sally, distrustful, her fingers trembling as she placed the final bandage. This is no place for such things."

"Ah, how little you know, then, my little!" No. 27's voice was very low. "You are in deep enough to another love. Love is of hardy growth. It lives even in the trenches. It springs up between red battles. Wars are fought for it. Love is cheap beside it. All these broken men are thinking of it—of sweethearts and wives, and girls they've met, and will meet, if they have the power to think of it. Though you don't know it. Why not think of it? It pilots the world—love, not work! Tell me, he whispered, gently, catching her hand with his left finger. "Will you love me? Will you get well—if you love me?"

It was terrible, with his blue eyes searching her face, his grasp that she could not shake off, and his voice which must have thrilled many women. Sally groped for words to quiet him, but suddenly she saw Dr. Rot coming down the ward. Dr. Rot, a man of quite an age and kind he looked. Then, glancing again in the feverish eyes of the man on the cot she murmured, "You must be good now, the doctor is here, and she touched his shoulder gently.

No. 27 drew in his breath sharply, glanced swiftly from Sally to Dr. Rot. "So he is the man!" he breathed, "he is the man!" and closing his eyes.

That night he died. Of course it was only an episode—one, among many—but it took toll of Sally's peace and strength.

"You've got to have a bit rest," said Dr. Rot to her next day. His kind eyes, clouded with anxiety, a furlough, you must stay. I can't not care you, Sally."

And it annoyed Sally, that instead of finding ready answers, the words of No. 27 went dimly through her mind. "No hell is deep enough to another love."

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) How long should a woman wear mourning for her husband?

(2) Should she attend movies or be friendly with a neighbor man if his wife has never called on her?

(3) Is it right to display jewelry or go about considerably?

(4) How should one dress if a widow of two months? LONE.

(5) From six months to two years if she cares to wear it at all. A great many people do not wear mourning at all because it only increases depression and does not benefit the deceased.

(6) It is all right to attend movies and to be friendly to the neighbor man if he is not too close to the neighbor. You should not be too friendly to other neighbors, how ever.

(7) People will talk if you wear jewelry noticeable and if you go about much. No one would talk if you did not dress well and that would keep you from being lonely.

(8) If you are dressing according to etiquette you should wear nothing but black, but if you do not choose to do so, you can wear a little white with the black.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) We are two young girls almost seventeen years of age and we would like your advice as how to act independent and yet be nice with our boy friends?

(2) Has a boy any respect for a girl if he tries to spoon with her?

(3) If a couple wishes to exchange photographs which should give the photograph first, the boy or the girl?

INTERESTED READERS.

(1) Just be natural and do not be afraid to be friendly and cordial. Never telephone or write to them to take your places. Receive their attentions, but do not seek them.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE.

Posture at work

A constrained working position is most harmful in youth when the bones are not yet fully developed and deformity is therefore more likely to occur.

Tailors, shoemakers, metal finders, lithographers, watchmakers, engravers, seamstresses, knitting machine hands and workers in various textile mills assume a bent-over posture in order to do their work. This posture in youth predisposes to round shoulders and hollow chest, which deformity interferes with free expansion of the lungs and therefore with the normal play of the chest whether it is in tuberculosis or not. It should be an inflexible rule for all such workers to stretch and stand rigidly for a moment every time the clock strikes the hour.

The same applies, unfortunately, to a great many girls and boys in school, owing to the miserable desk and seating arrangements provided in some schools. This stooped or cramped posture not only interferes with lung function and proper oxygenation or aeration of the blood, but also embarrasses the distribution of the blood to important abdominal and pelvic organs, thus accounting for many of the minor ailments of both sexes and the functional difficulties of girls and women. Employers and superintendents with the health interests of employees and capital in mind will do well to institute the hourly stretch and unknocking rule above mentioned. Standing erect is not taught in schools, and is not taught in the home. The particular diseases opposed by the hourly stretch are consumption, anemia, constipation, dyspepsia, dysmenorrhea, hemorrhoids, prostatic and hemorrhoidal.

Young persons employed as bakers, clerks, nurses, waiters, conductors or other work requiring long hours on the feet, particularly prolonged standing, are notoriously subject to flat-foot or pronated (weak) feet—that is, ankles turn in—and swollen or varicose veins in the legs. Narrow high heels and pointed out-toe shoes contribute to the defect; all such workers should be required to wear shoes with straight or inward-turning inside lines, which permit the wearer to toe straight ahead or a trifle in-

SIDE TALKS

—BY— RUTH CAMERON

"Have you met that type of person," writes a letter friend, "who, when you are telling her how hard you have worked to keep three strait-laced youngsters clean and well and happy, and your house in order, without any help, and how fearfully tired and nervous and sick of it all you get sometimes, answers you without a spark of sympathy. 'Well, most of us have been through it. I had four children in eight years, my-self, or something to the effect, and it makes you feel as if you had had a slap in the face.'"

I have, and it does.

When one asks for the bread of sympathy, one does not want the stone of an I've-stood-and-I-guess-you-can-attitude.

The Biggest Lesson of Suffering. And the person who tells you she has missed the biggest lesson of harsh experience, which is to be able to give sympathy to those who are facing such experiences, through suffering, is to have failed in life.

A similar job's comforter is the person who makes you feel how much worse off someone else is than you. I suppose it ought to help us to remember that sort of thing, but somehow it doesn't, very much.

IN ARCTIC CIRCLES.

"Yes," mused Colonel Harta Reotin in the Neck to Nature. "Speaking of the Arctic, reminds me of the time I volunteered to journey to the North Pole on a rescue trip. For eighteen years, Bah Jove, a party of explorers had not been heard of and the Government thought it was time to rescue them from the icy wastes of the Arctic regions."

"So, the Government called for the bravest of the men to go, and I was fitted out a ship with provisions for ten or twenty years and started for the bally northern shores."

"Gentlemen, if I were to describe the monotony of the deep we encountered on that voyage, you would never believe me again; so I will refrain."

"One day the wind was blowing up toward the pole very swiftly when a gigantic iceberg loomed up in the horizon. It was so wide that it took up all of the horizon, and we were upon the bally northern thing! But for my marvelous presence of mind we would all have perished. Quickly I shouted for all on board to throw over the side of the stomach and hold them, their blankets and bedclothes, this forming a pad fifty feet thick. When the collision occurred the blankets and quilts were scattered in all directions, and we were all saved."

"But didn't you freeze to death be-

Well, wasn't it lucky that the big shepherd dog frightened Daddy Fox in the last story, for if he hadn't there wouldn't be any story tonight, and neither would there be any Billy Bunny.

Well, as soon as Daddy Fox was out of sight, for of course the big shepherd dog couldn't catch him, the little rabbit hopped away down the Friendly Forest Trail until he came to the Cave of the Big Brown Bear, who kept honey and molasses candy so sell to Little Forest Folks, and as soon as he saw Billy Bunny he said:

"Your Uncle Lucky drove by in his Luckymobile not more than three and a half seconds ago."

"Oh, dear!" cried the little rabbit, "I had only come here four seconds earlier I would have caught him," and then he sat down on a stone and wiped a tear out of his eye.

"Egad, that we would sir, but we immediately fell into a heated discussion. No ready-made optimism, no flimsy sounding exhortations to courage, can help so much as that. To be sure, having given that, you may find some words of encouragement in some tale of a misfortune which looked as black as his and which afterwards came out all right, some phrase of cheer that has helped you. But the sympathy, not substituted for it."

IRON COW GIVES SUPPLY OF MILK

New York, July 12.—Tenant dwellers of the upper east side discovered the milky way recently—not in the stary firmament, but in the Lenox Hill Settlement, where for more than two hours milk flowed from a mechanical iron cow at the rate of three and a half quarts a minute, and was distributed to the multitude.

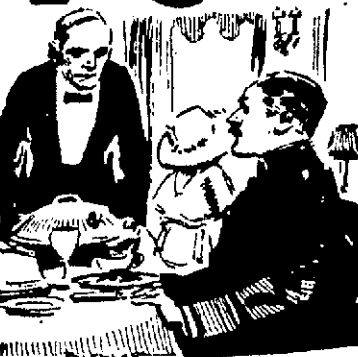

With pitchers, buckets, fruit jars and dippers they came, rushing like can to the fountain. The assembly room of the settlement house on sixty-ninth street was crowded quickly and the clatter of tin pails resounded. An overflow assemblage extended in a long queue from the sidewalk around to the side entrance and there waited patiently for their bars were down and the substantial part of the entertainment began.

The occasion was the opening of a demonstration center of the department of Public Markets, which is to be operated under the Lenox Hill Settlement. From this center "animal milk," a process fluid by which phoned milk is reduced to a liquid state, and will be sold at nine cents a quart.

Take This Tip From Me

Note the difference between these two tips. In the wire wound broom often the finest, softest ends of the fibres must be trimmed off in order to make the tip even. Therefore, the harsh part of the fibres left to form the tip, make it stubby and inclined to spread—the fibres break and the tip quickly loses its shape.

Little Polly fibres—strengthened and toughened by the Kem-bath Process—are measured to exact length before being built up into the broom. For this reason, the fine, soft fibres need not be sacrificed by clipping them away. Little Polly's full beautiful tip wears straight to the handle. Ask your dealer or write to

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain multifused cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get multifused cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

DOCTORS ADVISE SPRING TONICS

Say There Is Nothing Equals Iron and Phosphates

Experienced doctors claim that everyone should take a good tonic in the spring, that during the cold winter months, the body has been weakened, and that the system is clogged up, overworked and overtaxed, causing thin, impure watery blood and that tired, nervous feeling, pimples and bad complexion.

Honest doctors all over the land have found and prescribed iron and phosphates, and these spring tonics for the blood and nerves, they say it removes all impurities, unclogs the channels and sends the rich, red life-giving blood through your veins, renewing health, strength and nerve force as nothing else will.

Gunner Depew

By ALBERT N. DEPEW

Ex-Gunner and Chief Petty Officer U. S. Navy—Member of the Foreign Legion of France—Captain (now Major), French Battleship Cassard—Winner of the Croix de Guerre.

CHAPTER I.

In the American Navy.

My father was a seaman, so, naturally, all my life I heard a great deal about ships and the sea. Even when I was a little boy, in Walston, Pa., I thought about them a whole lot and wanted to be a sailor—especially a sailor in the U. S. navy.

You might say I was brought up on the water.

When I was twelve years old I went to sea as cabin boy on the whaler Therifus, out of Boston. She was an old square-rigged sailing ship, built more for work than for speed. We were out four months on my first cruise, and got knocked around a lot, especially in a storm on the Newfoundland Banks, where we lost our instruments, and had a hard time navigating the ship.

Whaling crews work on shares and during the two years I was on the Therifus my shares amounted to fourteen hundred dollars.

Then I shipped as first-class helmsman on the British tramp Southern, a two-screw steamer out of Liverpool. Many people are surprised that a fourteen-year-old boy should be helmsman on an ocean-going craft, but all over the world you will see young lads doing their work at the wheel. I was on the Southerndown two years and in that time visited most of the important ports of Europe. There is nothing like a tramp steamer if you want to see the world. The Southerndown is the vessel that, in the fall of 1917, sighted a German U-boat rigged up like a sailing ship.

Although I liked visiting the foreign ports, I got tired of the Southerndown after a while and at the end of a year I decided to get into the United States navy. After laying around for a week or two I enlisted and was assigned to duty as a second-class fireman.

People have said they thought I was pretty small to be a fireman; they have the idea that firemen must be big men. Well, I am 5 feet 7½ inches in height, and when I was sixteen I was just as tall as I am now and weighed 168 pounds. I was a whole lot huskier then, too, for that was before my introduction to kultur in German prison camps, and life there is not exactly fattening—not exactly. I do not know why it is, but if you will notice the navy firemen—the lads with the red stripes around their left shoulders—you will find that almost all of them are small men. But they are a husky lot.

Now, in the navy, they always have a newcomer until he shows that he can take care of himself, and I got mine very soon after I went into Uncle Sam's service. I was washing my clothes in a bucket on the forecabin deck, and every garby (sailor) who came along would give me or the bucket a kick, and spill one or the other of us. Each time I would move to some other place, but I always seemed to be in somebody's way. Finally I saw a marine coming. I was nowhere near him, but he hauled out of his course to come up to me and gave the bucket a boot that sent it twenty feet away, at the same time handing me a clout on the ear that just about knocked me down. Now, I did not exactly know what a marine was, and this fellow had so many stripes on his sleeves that I thought he must be some sort of officer, so I just stood by. There was a gold stripe (commissioned officer) on the bridge and I knew that if anything was wrong he would cut in, so I kept looking up at him, but he stayed where he was, looking on, and never saying a word. And all the time the marine kept slapping me about and telling me to get the hell out of there.

Finally I said to myself, "I'll get this guy if it's the brig for a month."

So I planted him one in the kidneys and another in the mouth, and he went clean up against the rail. But he came back at me strong, and we were at it for some time.

But when it was over the gold stripe came down from the bridge and shook hands with me!

After this they did not haze me much. This was the beginning of a certain reputation that I had in the navy for fast-work. Later on I had a reputation for swimming, too. That first day they began calling me "Chink," though I don't know why, and it has been my nickname in the navy ever since.

It is a curious thing, and I never could understand it, but garbles and marines never mix. The marines are good men and great fighters, aboard and ashore, but we garbles never have a word for them, nor they for us. On shore leave abroad we pal up with foreign garbles, even, but hardly ever with a marine. Of course they are with us strong in case we have a scrap with a liberty party off some foreign ship—they cannot keep out of a fight any more than we can—but after it is over they are on their way at once and we on ours.

There are lots of things like that in the navy that you cannot figure out the reason for, and I think it is because sailors change their ways so little. They do a great many things in the navy because the navy always has done them.

I kept strictly on the job as a fireman, but I wanted to get into the gun turret. It was slow work for a long time. I had to serve as second-class fireman for four months, first-class for eight months and in the engine room as water-tender for a year.

Then, after serving on the U. S. S. Des Moines as a gun-loader, I was transferred to the Iowa and finally worked up to a gun-pointer. After a time I got my C. P. O. rating—chief petty officer, first-class gunner.

The various navies differ in many ways, but most of the differences would not be noticed by any one but a sailor. Every sailor has a great deal of respect for the Swedes and Norwegians and Danes; they are born sailors and are very daring, but, of course, their navies are small. The Germans were always known as clean sailors; that is, as in our navy, and the British, their vessels were shipshape all the time, and were run as sweet as a clock.

There is no use comparing the various navies as to which is best; some are better at one thing and some at another. The British navy, of course, is the largest, and nobody will deny that at most things they are top-notch—least of all themselves; they admit it. But there is one place where the navy of the United States has it all over every other navy on the seven seas, and that is gunnery. The American navy has the best gunners in the world. And do not let anybody tell you different.

CHAPTER II.

The War Breaks.

After serving four years and three months in the U. S. navy, I received an honorable discharge on April 14, 1914. I held the rank of chief petty officer, first-class gunner. It is not uncommon for garbles to lie around a while between enlistments—they like a vacation as much as anyone—and it was my intention to loaf for a few months before joining the navy again.

After the war started, of course, I had heard more or less about the Hun atrocities in Belgium, and while I was greatly interested, I was doubtful at first as to the truth of the reports, for I knew how news gets changed in passing from mouth to mouth, and I never was much of a hand to believe things until I saw them, anyway. Another thing that caused me to be interested in the war was the fact that my mother was born in Alsace. Her maiden name, Dier-vieux, is well known in Alsace. I had often visited my grandmother in St. Nazaire, France, and knew the country. So with France at war, it was not strange that I should be even more interested than many other garbles.

As I have said, I did not take much stock in the first reports of the Hun's exhibition of kultur, because Fritz is known as a clean sailor, and I figured that no real sailor would ever get mixed up in such dirty work as they said there was in Belgium. I figured the soldiers were like the sailors. But I found out I was wrong about both. One thing that opened my eyes a bit was the trouble my mother had in getting out of Hanover, where she was when the war started, and back to France. She always wore a little American flag and this both saved and endangered her. Without it, the Germans would have interned her as a Frenchwoman, and with it, she was sneered at and insulted time and again before she finally managed to get over the border. She died about two months after she reached St. Nazaire.

Moreover, I heard the fate of my older brother, who had made his home in France with my grandmother. He had gone to the front at the outbreak of the war with the infantry from St. Nazaire and had been killed two or three weeks afterwards. This made it a sort of personal matter.

But what put the finishing touches to me was the stories a wounded Canadian lieutenant told me some months later in New York. He had been there and he knew. You could not tell him anything; you can always tell him when a man has been there and knows.

There was not much racket around New York, so I made up my mind all of a sudden to go over and get some for myself. Believe me, I got enough racket before I was through. Most of the really important things I have done have happened like that: I did them on the jump, you might say. Many other Americans wanted a look, too; there were five thousand Americans in the Canadian army at one time they say.

I would not claim that I went over there to save democracy, or anything like that. I never did like Germans, and I never met a Frenchman who was not kind to me, and what I heard about the way the Huns treated the Belgians made me sick. I used to get out of bed to go to an all-night picture show. I thought about it so much. But there was not much excitement about New York, and I figured the U. S. would not get into it for a while, anyway, so I just wanted to go over and see what it was like. That is why lots of us went, I think.

There were five of us who went to Boston to ship for the other side: Sam Murray, Ed Brown, Tim Flynn, Mitchell and myself. Murray was an ex-garby—two hitchhikes (enlistments), gun-painter rating, and about thirty-five years old. Brown was a Pennsylvania man about twenty-six years old, who had served two enlistments in the U. S. army and had quit with the rank of sergeant. Flynn and Mitchell were both ex-navy men. Mitchell was a noted boxer. Of the five of us, I am the only one who went in, got through and came out. Flynn and Mitchell did not go to; Murray and Brown never came back.

The five of us shipped on the steamship Virginian of the American-Hawaiian line, under American flag and registry, but chartered by the French government. I signed on as water-tender—an engine room job—but the others were on deck—that is, seamen.

We left Boston for St. Nazaire with a cargo of ammunition, bully beef, etc., and made the first trip without anything of interest happening.

As we were tying to the dock at St. Nazaire, I saw a German prisoner sitting on a pile of lumber. I thought probably he would be hungry, so I went down into the oilers' mess and got two slices of bread with a thick piece of beefsteak between them and handed it to Fritz. He would not take it. At first I thought he was afraid, but by using several languages and signs he managed to make me understand that he was not hungry—had too much to eat, in fact.

I used to think of this fellow occasionally when I was in a German prison camp, and a piece of moldy bread the size of a safety-match box was the generous portion of food they forced on me, with true German hospitality, once every forty-eight hours. I would not exactly have refused a beefsteak sandwich, I am afraid. But then I was not a heaven-born garby. I was only a common American garby. He was full of kultur and grub; I was not full of anything.

The Light in the Clearing

A TALE OF THE NORTH COUNTRY IN THE TIME OF SILAS WRIGHT.

By IRVING BACHELLER Author of Eben Holden, Etc.

Copyright, '17, The Bobbs-Merrill Co.

So now at last we have come to that high and lonely place, where the sun may look back upon the toilsome, adventurous way we have traveled with the aid of the candle and the compass. Now let us stop a moment to rest and to think. My host, I see, is here. The night is falling. I see the stars in the sky. Just below me is the valley of Eternal Silence. You will understand my haste, now. I have sought only to do justice to my friend and to give my country a name, long neglected, but equal in glory to those of Washington and Lincoln.

Come let us take one last look together down the road we have traveled. Then a cheer from the boats, in which I joined.

"Surely there couldn't be a better place than here under the big pine—so smooth and soft and shady," said she.

"Nor could there be a better day or better company," I urged, for I was not sure that she would agree with me. "I shall never forget how, when the company had landed and the greetings were over, Uncle Fenwick approached my mother and said:

"Say, Sally, I'm going to plant a kiss on both of your red cheeks of yours, and do it deliberately, too."

He did it, and so did Aunt Deel and old Kate, and I think that, next to your mother and me, they were the happiest people at the wedding.

There is a lonely gap, up in the hills—that of the stranger who died long ago on Rattleroad. One day I found Kate sitting beside it and on a stone lately erected there was the name, Enoch Rone.

"It is a very sorrowful," she whispered, "if you were trying to find me when he died."

We walked on in silence while I recalled the circumstance. How strange that these tales of blood and death should come back to me now, during that night when Kate had given to Amos Grimshaw had led to the slaying of her own son. Yet, so it happened, and the old wives will tell you the story up there in the hills.

The play ends just as the night is falling with Kate and me entering the little home, so familiar now, where she lives and is ever with me. Aunt Deel and Uncle Fenwick. Look up at the light in God's window. How bright it shines tonight! When I feel bad I always look at the stars.

Grocer Up Against It

"I have been up against it for the past 3 years suffering from pain in my stomach and side until I was considering giving up my grocery business. Doctors and my medicine did not help me. Dinner Stories

A certain judge of a state supreme court had been appointed and was well satisfied with himself.

"Mary," he said to the Irish waitress at the hotel where he was ress at the hotel where he was, "You have been in this country how long?"

"Two years, sir," she said.

"Do you like it?"

"Sure, it's well enough," answered Mary.

"But, Mary," the judge continued, "you have many privileges in this country which you do not have in Ireland. Now at home you would never be in a room with a justice of the supreme court and chatting familiarly with him."

"But, sure, sir," said Mary, quite in earnest, "you'd never be a judge at home."

"It says here that a wealthy western man has left five hundred thousand dollars to the woman who refused to marry him twenty years ago," said Mrs. Grubb, as she looked up from the newspaper she was reading.

"That's what I call gratitude," commented Mr. Grubb.

The new girl in the counting room of a daily newspaper was from Kentucky. An elderly gentleman walked up to her and said, "I would like to get copies of your paper for a week back."

She replied, "Auntie has one, too; you had better try Auntie's plasters. You can get them just across the street."
